Horsham is a pleasant, quiet, little country market town of about 11,000 inhabitants situated in the neighbourhood of the beautiful wooded district of St. Leonard's Forest in the Sussex Weald. It is a town of considerable antiquity with many specimens extant of the old timbered houses. In the centre of the town is the Carfax, an open space where until recently was displayed the iron ring on which bulls were fastened to be baited.

It was a dreadful day yesterday. I did not venture to the 'Garden Sale' & Mrs Garlands Brother's Meeting went on their Outing too!!! Violet is coming to tea today & if it is fine (which is very doubtful), we are going down to the Rose Show at the Drill afterwards. Love from Dad!
